Editors' Preface.

THE task of compiling a record of the proceedings of the Oxford University Musical Union during the first ten years of its existence, which was imposed on us by the General Meeting of the Club held on January 17, 1894, has been one of very considerable difficulty, and in presenting the results of our labours to the members of the Club we find ourselves compelled to ask for their kind consideration of our shortcomings. One feature of this book which was suggested—some notice of the humours of the Suggestion Books, we have felt ourselves obliged to omit, not because these volumes do not contain a great quantity of jeux d'esprit, but because the wit and the humour of such jests is a very volatile and fleeting essence which we felt ourselves unable to preserve. As regards the rest of the book, we venture to say that the difficulty of obtaining accuracy in dealing with such great numbers of statements of facts as are involved in the following pages can only be fully appreciated by those who have made the attempt, and we are obliged to add a hope that members who discover mistakes will bear in mind the celebrated Western States' appeal:—"Gentlemen are requested not to shoot at the pianist—he is doing his best."

A Brief Account of the History of the Club.

THE idea of establishing a University Club for the study of and practice of chamber music by members of the University of Oxford was "in the air" all through the first two terms of the year 1884. Probably Mr. Franklin Harvey of Magdalen and Mr. F. Cunningham Woods of St. Mary Hall, (since of Exeter), were the chief disseminators of the scheme, and they formed, at any rate, one half of the first meeting that was held to consider the possibility of starting such a Club, the other two being Mr. H. M. Abel and the Rev. J. H. Mee, both of Merton College. Messrs. G. P. A. Acworth and W. H. Hadow, both of Worcester College, and Mr. S. C. Sharland of Balliol College were the next partners in the scheme, and as the result of a good deal of consultation a circular was issued in June, 1884, to the more generally known musicians of the University, stating that it was intended to establish such a Club and inviting co-operation. Four points were especially suggested as features of the proposed Club, (1) a weekly smoking concert by members, (2) a weekly class for practice under professional teaching, (3) a Club-room in which musical considerations should have the first place, (4) a low rate of subscription. It will be observed that these original features have been preserved intact.

It is not very easy at the present time, after ten years of brilliant success, to realise how incredibly rash the scheme appeared to many people in 1884. Many predictions of a speedy catastrophe were freely made, and the promoters themselves had no idea of the success that was to attend their project. One of them confessed that he feared it would be hardly possible to get beyond pianoforte duetts, and in the first circular the number of original members was limited to fifty. But as soon as the Club-room had been opened (October 12, 1884) and the first of the weekly music meetings held (October 14), it became apparent that much larger support would be forthcoming. It was accordingly determined to allow a greater number of original members, and, in the end, no fewer than 109 gave in their names. At the very first meeting a String Quartett was performed, and there have been very few meetings since at which this typical species of chamber music has not been represented. The first general meeting was held on October 21, 1884, at 8.0 p.m., when a Code of Rules, drawn up by the Rev. J. H. Mee of Merton College, was considered, amended, and ultimately passed. These Rules, with some additions and a few slight alterations, are still in force. When this was done the Provisional Committee of promoters had finished their task, a regular Committee was elected (see p. 36), and the Club fairly launched.

The events of the first year of the Club's existence are only second in point of interest to the circumstances of its origin, as they record the laying down of the broad lines of principle on which it has ever since proceeded. The finances of the Society were helped to meet the first term's expenses by a donation of £25 from the Treasurer, an assistance that they have never required since, nor, with ordinary prudence, are ever likely to require again. The modest origin of the Library, which has since grown to such large dimensions, is to be found in a resolution proposed by Mr. T. W. Bourne of New College, on January 20, 1885, recommending that every member, on going out of residence, should present to the Library some portion of the works of one of the Classical Composers or some volume of musical literature. A glance at the list of "Donors of Music" will shew the liberality with which this recommendation has been carried out. In Lent Term, 1885, the first Invitation Concert was held in Balliol College Hall, and it is worthy of note, as throwing some light on the good influence of the O.U.M.U. on University music in Oxford, that at that time a professional string quartett had not been heard in Oxford for five years. It was in connection with this Concert that the Society came to the decision, to which it has always adhered, not to sell tickets for its Concerts or attempt to make money by them. The social side of the Club's life was agitated by a proposal to adopt "colours," which was ultimately rejected, and was brought very strongly to the front by a great Dinner at the Randolph Hotel on April 25, 1885, in honour of Dr. Hans Richter who had on that day received the degree of D.Mus., honoris causa, from the University. The guest of the evening, in reply to the toast of his health, said: "In my life I account two days especially happy; one is the day, now nineteen years ago, when I entered the house of my beloved master and friend, Richard Wagner; the other is this day I will not now wish you farewell as if about to leave you for ever, but I will drain my glass to the toast 'Auf Wiedersehen.'"^{*} Mr. (since Dr.) Taylor proposed "Success to the O.U.M.U." in a most appreciative speech, and the proceedings ended with festivities in the Club-room. The end of the academical year was marked by one of the animated General Meetings, which have since played so prominent a part in the history of the Club, as there were no fewer than twelve candidates for election on the Committee.

Nor was the year 1885-86 without events of importance. The Rules received an important addition in the shape of provision for taking a poll if necessary, and the day and hour of the Weekly Music Meeting, a matter which had agitated more than one General Meeting, was finally fixed as it has ever since remained (Wednesdays, at 8.30 p.m.). A fresh departure was taken on December 9, 1885, when, for the first time, the programme consisted of compositions by members of the Club. The last Music Meeting in the October Term of each year has ever since been devoted to the performance of members' compositions, and the plan has not only been found to give the composers much useful experience, but has also been the means of bringing forward many charming compositions in the highest branches of musical art. At the Invitation Concert in Michaelmas Term the Heckmann Quartett appeared for the first time at one of the Society's Concerts, thus inaugurating a connection which was only terminated by Mr. Heckmann's tragic death. The Minute Books for the year also contain the first rumours of the enlargement of the Club-room, and of the foundation of the Cambridge University Musical Club; but, unquestionably, the most important event of the year was that in January, 1886, Mr. G. H. Betjemann assumed the direction of the Ensemble Class. His genial character and musicianly skill soon won for him the influence and esteem with which the members of the Club have ever since regarded him. It is difficult to over-estimate the debt that the Society owes to his encyclopedic knowledge and indomitable patience, a debt most recognised by those members who have taken the most prominent places in the meetings and business of the Club.

The whole of the following year (1886-87) was permeated with discussions as to the best method of enlarging the Club-room. Those who remember the old room are well aware that it is hardly possible for people who have only seen the new room to imagine how many complicated structural details had to be considered in making the change. Both the Committee and the General Meetings had their hands quite full of this business all through the year, and there is nothing else for the chronicler to record except a controversy as to the manner in which members of the University of Cambridge should, if they desired it, have the opportunity of becoming members of the Club. The ultimate decision was an interpretation of Rule II. to the effect that it should not be understood to exclude members of the University of Cambridge resident in Oxford.

The commencement of Michaelmas Term, 1887, saw the opening of the new Club-room, and the first programme given in it, on October 19, consisted of Mendelssohn's Octett for Strings and Schumann's Pianoforte Quintett. Dr. J. Frederick Bridge, who was present as a visitor, was so pleased with what he heard that he at once became a candidate for membership and has ever since taken a warm interest in the proceedings of the Club. It might have been supposed that after this great scheme had been carried to a successful issue, there would have been a lull in the activity of the Society. This, however, was by no means the case. A number of members, headed by one of the most influential members in residence (Mr. H. M. Abel, Merton Coll.), were anxious to place a limit on the numbers of the Club and were opposed by another large section, headed by men of equal eminence (Messrs. A. H. Castle, St. John's Coll. and G. I. Simey, Balliol Coll.) The result was a debate (April 25, 1888) the memories of which will linger long amongst those who were fortunate enough to be there. The meeting added some eight rules to the code of the Club, thereby bringing them practically into their present shape, but decided against the imposition of any limit of numbers. By the year 1888, the number of the Non-Resident members of the Club had begun to assume considerable proportions and it was resolved to establish a Non-Residents' programme at one of the weekly music meetings. The first meeting in Summer Term was considered to be most likely to suit the convenience of members not in residence, and the first of these programmes was accordingly given on April 25, 1888. It was also considered that this occasion would be very suitable for bringing out the social side of the Society's life by the establishment of an Annual House Dinner on the evening before. Both projects were carried through with remarkable success, and have been features of the Club ever since. Many will look back on these yearly festivities as among the most delightful events of their University career. In the ordinary course of the Club's business during the year 1888-89, a great controversy raged as to the arrangements for hiring the pianoforte in the Club-room, which were generally regarded as unsatisfactory. The leading part was taken by Mr. D. J. Young, of Balliol Coll., and it is owing to the energy that he displayed that the previous dissatisfaction has been entirely removed and the present excellent system established.

An event of the first importance signaled the year 1889-90, namely, the foundation at Cambridge of a Society (the Cambridge University Musical Club) on the same principles as those of the Oxford University Musical Union. From the very first, relations of exceptional cordiality have subsisted between the two Clubs, each of which at once adopted members of the other Society as non-resident members of its own. The result is that any member of the O.U.M.U. is entitled to membership of the C.U.M.C. for three weeks without paying a subscription, and for a longer period without paying entrance fee or election. Precisely the same privileges are enjoyed at Oxford by members of the C.U.M.C. Many members of both Clubs have benefited greatly from these regulations. By way of still further linking the two University Clubs together it was resolved that each should, once a year, undertake an entire programme in the other's Club-room. These annual réunions have been attended with extraordinary success and are much looked forward to. It is hardly necessary to say that to be chosen to take part in one of these programmes is the highest honour that the Club can bestow.

The seventh year of the Club's existence (1890-91) was memorable for another illustration of the manner in which good feeling has always prevailed, even in the most serious controversies as to the management of the society. The intentions of the Committee with regard to the programme of the Invitation Concert in the October Term failed to meet with the approval of a large section of the members and a special meeting was called by ten members with the view of effecting a change. The question was sturdily debated, but, in the end, the leading supporters of the change (Messrs. E. E. Charles and E. G. Alderson, both of New College) withdrew their proposal, and the controversy terminated without having caused even the slightest interruption of general good feeling amongst the members. Two gifts of importance were made to the society in the course of the year, a bust of Handel, from the statue of that composer in Westminster Abbey, by Mr. T. W. Bourne, New College, and a two manual Organ with pedals by the Rev. Dr. Mee, Merton College. The appearance of the Club-room was greatly improved by both gifts, and the latter has also been found to be of great practical use to members.

In the following year (1891-92) the society was much agitated by a proposal brought forward by Mr. J. B. Baker, Non Coll., to greatly extend the scope and size of the society's Library. The question occupied more than one general meeting and was finally settled in the negative by a poll. Subsequent experience has tended to prove that this decision was a wise one, as Librarians have found great trouble and difficulty in taking proper care of the Library even in its present form. Indeed, with all their pains, they have not been able to prevent the loss of some books. The object of the proposer of the change was, however, substantially secured in another way, as Mr. Taphouse, with characteristic generosity, on hearing of the discussion, announced his readiness to lend any book in his own Library to members on application. By this most munificent offer the members of the Club have been given access to one of the most valuable and important libraries of music and books on music that exists in this country.

The "diary" for avoiding clashing in the arrangement of rehearsals and improvements in the lighting of the room were among the minor novelties of the year.

The penultimate year of this brief record (1892-93) was mainly remarkable for a good deal of controversy as to the desirability of holding an Invitation Concert in the New Theatre. In the end the experiment was tried on February 23, 1893, but it was neither the complete success or the complete failure that had been predicted by various members. Another remarkable feature of the year was the extraordinary merit of the weekly music meetings. An exceptional number of excellent performers were in residence and almost all the most important chamber music of the great composers was heard in the course of the year, including, in the Lent Term, a number of Duets for Two Pianofortes.

The tenth year of the Club's existence (1893-94) was inaugurated by the special recognition at a General Meeting of the services rendered to it by Mr. E. H. Fellowes, Oriel Coll. and Mr. A. Ramsbotham, Exeter Coll. Later on, it was resolved, on the proposal of Mr. P. C. Buck, Worcester Coll., to contribute £20 to the guarantee fund of the Public Classical Concerts for the year. In the Lent Term, the question of the best means of celebrating the conclusion of the first decade of the Club's existence was considered, and it was decided to mark the actual date (the end of Summer Term, 1894) by an Invitation Concert by members of the Club, which was given in Balliol Coll. Hall, on June 14, 1894, and to hold a Festival Dinner and meeting of all members who could be present at the beginning of Summer Term, 1895. It was also ordered that a record of the ten years' proceedings should be issued in book form to all members, and the duty of drawing up this was assigned to Mr. P. C. Buck, Worcester Coll., Rev. Dr. Mee, Merton Coll., and Mr. F. C. Woods, Exeter College.

Here, for the present, this brief record terminates. No one, on looking back over it, can fail to be struck with the great success that has attended the Club. During the whole of the past ten years the excellence of the weekly music meetings has been steadily maintained, and maintained entirely by the performances of members. It is hardly necessary to add that the great majority of these members have been Undergraduates, and even a cursory glance at the programmes will show what a remarkable achievement this has been. Nor is it difficult to see the reasons of the Club's success. They are to be found in the fact that from the very first the best traditions of artistic and student life have been carefully cherished and preserved. On the artistic side this fact has been most manifest in the predominance of a spirit of the truest criticism, a criticism that does not ignore faults but seeks first for merits to applaud. The spirit of student life has been eminently conspicuous in the freedom and good humour with which all the numerous controversies of Club existence have been carried on, and in the general friendliness that has always prevailed amongst the members, leading, in many cases, to the establishment of friendships that already bid fair to be life-long. The general meetings of the Club have always been marked alike by the ardour and the good temper with which opposite opinions have been maintained, the result of which has been that the warmest debates have never left a sting behind. No one can foresee to whom will fall the duty of chronicling the second decade of the Club's existence, but it is safe for us, in closing our task, to predict that, if these precious traditions of artistic and student life are revered and maintained in the future as they have been in the past, they will have to record a decade of success equal to the success of the ten years whose history we have endeavoured to narrate.

The history of the formation, growth, and success of the O.U.M.U. would be incomplete without special allusion being made to the untiring energy of Dr. Mee, and we are confident that the resolution of a General Meeting which ordered that his portrait should be prefixed to this book will meet with unanimous approval. As regards the Committee, it may be truly said that "Men may come and men may go, but he goes on (we hope) for ever." Without his grasp of business details and concise knowledge of University life and ways, no Club could have achieved so much success on the peculiar lines laid down; and we congratulate ourselves upon having been afforded this opportunity of expressing the deep sense of affection and regard entertained by past and present members of the O.U.M.U. towards our valued friend the Hon. Treasurer.

Special General Meetings may be summoned at any other time by the Committee or by any ten members. At least a week's notice shall be given of a special General Meeting. A poll of the Society shall be taken on any question if six members of the Club sign a requisition for it.

XI.—ALTERATION OF RULES.

Any alteration of the rules of the Club or any new rule must be proposed and seconded at a General Meeting of the Club, after at least a week's notice of the proposed change has been given, and shall be considered carried if a majority of the members present at the meeting support it. If the number of votes given for and against such a proposed change be equal, the proposal shall be considered rejected.

XII.—HONORARY MEMBERS.

Strangers may be admitted to the performances in the Club Room by leave of the Committee. The Committee, however, may not grant such leave to any lady or more than once to any person resident in Oxford. Application for such leave must be made to the Committee in writing not later than the Saturday preceding the performance, and must state the names of the strangers for whom leave is desired. Any member infringing this rule shall be subject to a fine of ten shillings.

XIV.—DISTURBING PERFORMANCES.

Any member disturbing the performance of music by talking, striking matches, writing with a quill pen, or making any other kind of noise, shall be subject to a fine of five shillings.

XXI.—CONCERTED MUSIC.

All concerted music for more than two instruments must be returned to the Club Room on the day on which the Ensemble Class is held in each week at least a quarter of an hour before the commencement of the class, and all vocal quartets must be returned on the days appointed for the Vocal Quartett Class at least a quarter of an hour before it is held. Any member who infringes this rule shall be fined half-a-crown.

XXIV.—WITHDRAWAL.

Any member wishing to withdraw from the Club must signify his wish in writing to the Secretary within a fortnight from the beginning of the current Term, otherwise he shall be liable for the terminal subscription.

XXV.—ASSENT TO RULES.

As the payment of the Entrance Fee and Subscription entitles a member to enjoy the benefit and privileges of the Club, so is it to be considered as implying his acquiescence in and submission to the rules of the Club, to the restrictions that they enjoin, and the penalties that they enact, and to such Rules and Regulations as shall be made from time to time by any General Meeting, or by the Committee.

CONCERT AT WELLINGTON.

Wellington Orchestral Society gave an excellent concert in Wellington Town Hall on Tuesday evening. The orchestra numbered 63 performers, and included 12 members of the Royal Marine Band (Plymouth Division). The programme included the overtures to "Semiramis" and "The Bohemian Girl," Meyerbeer's "Coronation March" from "Le Prophete," Schubert's B minor "Symphony," and a suite for orchestra, composed by the Hon. Conductor of the Society, Mr. A. K. Elworthy. The walse movement, "Leon du Bal," for strings only, was also given, and violin and violoncello solos, and a trio for violin, violoncello, and pianoforte completed the programme of instrumental music. Three songs were given in charming style by Miss Annie Layton.

DEAR SIR,

I am instructed by the Committee to forward you a copy of the book narrating the proceedings of the Club during the last ten years and trust that you will find that it contains much of interest.

I am also desired to remind you that the Festival Meeting will be held on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, April 29, April 30, and May 1, 1895. The Committee hope to send out at a very early date full particulars of the arrangements to those members who have expressed a hope that they will be able to be present. Meanwhile they have great pleasure in stating that the number of members who are likely to attend the Festival Meeting is very large, and there is every prospect of a most successful and interesting gathering.

Yours most truly,

RICHARD C. DAVIS,

WORCESTER COLLEGE,

Hon. Sec.
